County Commission Approves Plan For Completion of Kenansville Road

The board of county commissioners in and for Osceola county, met at 2 p. m. May 17. Members present J. Nathan Bryan, chairman; H. O. Partin, A. F. Bass and P. Tomasello, Sr., W. F. Ames being absent. All members of the board having been notified of the meeting. Ellis F. Davis, attorney for the board and J. L. Overstreet, clerk, each being present.

The board was called to order by its chairman and the purpose of the meeting announced.

The chairman of the board asked Mr. Davis if he was ready to make report on contract of Steed and Walker. Mr. Davis presented and read written opinion prepared by him after having examined the contract between the board of county commissioners and Steed and Walker, which was upon motion of P. Tomasello, Sr., seconded by A. F. Bass and carried, accepted and ordered spread on the minutes of the board.

Mr. Davis advised the board that after having examined the contract between board and Steed and Walker, it was his opinion the remainder of work to be done on the Kenansville road should be done under new contract. The funds under which original contract was made had been exhausted authorized to expend the funds authorized under special act of legislature for work under former contract. Mr. Tomasello stated it was his idea the board should advertise for bids for completion of the work.

Motion by H. O. Partin seconded by A. F. Bass and carried, it was ordered that Steed and Walker be authorized to proceed with the completion of the Kenansville road, under their contract, until the funds derived from the $150,000.00 bond issue are exhausted. Also that Gregory and Wilson be authorized under their contract to proceed on the completion of the Hickory Tree road, until the funds derived from the $150,000.00 bond issue are exhausted.

Moved by A. F. Bass and seconded by H. O. Partin, and carried, that the clerk of the board be directed to issue warrants to Steed and Walker for $1,000.00 on road and bridge fund, for amount due on estimate filed with the board May 2nd, 1927.

Motion by Partin seconded by Bass and carried that the attorney for the board present to legislature immediately for passage a bill ratifying and approving the action of the board authorizing Steed and Walker to complete Kenansville road to Kenansville under contract of May 8th, 1926, and also that the action of board authorizing Gregory and Wilson to complete the Hickory Tree road under contract of May 8th, 1926.

Upon motion of A. F. Bass seconded by H. O. Partin and carried, the attorney for the board was directed to prepare a proper and necessary resolution, and form of bond to be issued for the one hundred and fifty thousand dollars bonds authorized under special act of the legislature.

Commissioner A. F. Bass spoke of the importance of the present road between Kissimmee and St. Cloud, and made a motion that the county purchase necessary material and shoulder the road, the work to be done with the county convicts when money is available. Motion was seconded by H. O. Partin and carried.

Mr. Davis reported to the board that there was a change made in contract between N. C. Cash and the board for hire of teams on the Holopaw road. That the copy as presented to the clerk for record in the minutes was not as it had been drawn by him. The agreement was for hire of six teams and the contract signed by N. C. Cash and F. P. Thack, road superintendent, called for twelve teams, which would make a considerable difference in amount of monthly pay roll for the work.

The board having completed its work, upon motion of Partin seconded by Bass and carried, the board adjourned.

May 17, 1927.
Hon. Board of County Commissioners, Kissimmee, Florida.
Gentlemen:

I have carefully considered the contract entered into between Osceola County and C. A. Steed and C. T. Steed, co-partners doing business as C. A. Steed & Son, and C. F. Walker, on the 8th day of May, 1926, relating to the construction of what is commonly referred as the Kenansville road in this county.

This contract shows upon its face to have been entered into pursuant to the provisions of the resolution of Osceola County and the ratification of said resolution by the vote of the freeholders held April 12, 1926.

Of course, this resolution relates to the building of a system of paved roads in Osceola County and the election held on April 12, 1926, when the county was authorized to issue bonds in the amount of $2,000,000.00 for the purpose of constructing said system of paved roads in Osceola County.

The contract under consideration expressly provides among other things (Article 16) "that the contractor shall complete all of his work under said contract on or before three hundred working days from receiving notice to begin."

Information has come to me that this notice to begin work was given during the month of August of 1926, so you can readily see that there are still quite a few more days of grace under which the contractor would have the authority to complete his work under the contract.

This contract will necessarily remain in force until the contractor completes all the work authorized by the board under the terms of such contract, but I submit that Article 16-A of the contract provides: "In case of insufficient funds, the shortage shall then be taken (Continued on Page Two)

Chief Bank Examiner Jackson Here To Complete Details of the Opening

The Peoples Bank will reopen for business at 9 o'clock next Monday morning according to advice from Chief Bank Examiner Jackson, given the Tribune today following a meeting of the stockholders held last night.

Out of 250 shares in the bank 248 were represented in person at the meeting last night.

After hearing a report from the reorganization committee and from the representative of the state banking department, it was ascertained that the business of the bank was in shape for reopening within a few days and an election of new directors was carried out with the following results:

Directors selected—

LLOYD HETTINGER
E. MALLORY
R. C. LEAKE
W. J. BLACKMUN
J. E. S. PHILLIPS
SAM BRAMMAR
B. L. STEEN

A meeting will be held tonight by the board of directors for the purpose of choosing officers and the election of the cashier.

The Peoples Bank was closed just two months ago following a run brought about by false rumors which pulled their cash reserve down to a point where it was necessary to close the bank.

It was found by the bank examiner that the bank was in good condition except for being short of cash, and there were no bills payable and it was said by the representative of the banking department who took charge after the closing, that the bank was in the best condition of any institution that had been forced to close its doors in the state.

At a meeting of stockholders an assessment was made for 100 per cent on all stock and it was voted to issue an additional $10,000 of stock.

This new stock was sold readily and the meeting held last night marked the completion of collection of the assessment and put the bank in a condition that the bank examiner gave his permission for reopening next Monday.

ST. CLOUD DEFEATS HOLOPAW

St. Cloud high school defeated Holopaw team on the latter's diamond last Friday. Even though St. Cloud took an early lead the game was interesting throughout. The features of the game were the pitching of McGill, St. Cloud, and the batting of Walters, Holopaw. Score 6-5.

Batteries: Holopaw; Duncan and Morgan.

Batteries: St. Cloud; Johnson and McGill.

After the game Mrs. Walters, of Holopaw, treated the St. Cloud boys to a good old-fashioned Mississippi feast.

With every day that passes the prospects of an American Legion owned club house becomes brighter. There has been a very loyal and patriotic example set by some of our local artists and mechanics who are not even members of the legion in offering to donate skilled work on the structure, such as plastering, masonry, etc. These efforts came in to different legionnaires unsolicited and unexpected, which makes us all feel good.

A suitable location for the proposed building has not yet been forthcoming, but several lots have been offered, some of which are under consideration. When we consider that the selection we make will undoubtedly be for all time, it is well not to be too hasty. The Post has knocked about from one temporary location to another for several years, and can stand it a few months longer rather than select a location for a permanent home that would not be suitable.

The Post desires to make its home more or less of a community hall, something on the plan of the club house in the park, where an auditorium will be available for all community functions, combining this idea with that of a club where the boys can lounge and spend their idle hours and pull off their social functions. For a home of this character a fairly central location is imperative.

Memorial Day arrangements are progressing, it having been arranged to have several musical numbers on the program by a male quartette under Dr. Hyndman's leadership. The joint committee holds its next and final meeting Tuesday night, the twenty-fourth, at Parker's office, and all details will be worked out finally at this meeting. A programme of the events of the day will be drafted and will appear in this column next issue of the paper. Watch for it.

COL. T. B. CROCKER TO ATTEND DECORATION DAY AT SARDINIA

His son, Mack, who has spent the past winter with him, will leave shortly for Philadelphia for the summer.

Vocational Agriculture in St. Cloud High School

B. A. J. GEIGER,
Instructor in Agriculture, St. Cloud High School

As the school year draws near to closing time, it is interesting to review some of the things that have been accomplished this year by the agriculture class in the high school.

The agriculture class is composed of boys from all four classes in the high school. The course is educational for the boys who are interested in agriculture. This year twenty-four boys registered for the work at the beginning of school and twenty-one are going to remain in the course until school closes.

Vocational education is becoming more popular with educators every year. In vocational education work the student is trained in both theory and practice of the work he is studying. Agriculture in the high school is classed as a vocational subject. During the course of study the student gets both theory and practice in agriculture.

The course is so arranged that the boys have class room work in agriculture, where they study from books, agriculture bulletins and all kinds of literature, where they are trained in the theory of agriculture. They study the theory of such subjects as soils, fertilizers, preparation of seed beds, propagation by means of grafting, budding, cutting, and seeds; insects and diseases of fruits and vegetables; sprays and spraying; harvesting, picking and marketing products grown on the various farms.

After the student has studied in the class room and received instruction in the theory of some farm job, he is given the practical side of his instruction out on the laboratory plot or school gardens. In the school garden the students receive practical instruction in the preparation of the seed bed; kind of fertilizer to be used for various crops and methods of applying it to the soil; planting; cultivation; controlling insects and diseases; mixing sprays and spraying; harvesting and marketing of crops. In the ornamental nursery they receive practical instruction in various methods of propagation and growing of ornamental plants.

This year the work of the students in the school garden or laboratory plot has been very satisfactory. With the beginning of school in September the school garden was planted to various crops, and through a system of crop rotation, truck crops of various kinds have been kept growing all the year. On part of the ground there has been as many as four crops grown on the same soil during this year and all of the ground has produced at least three crops this year. In the fall the garden was planted to fall truck crops, beans, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, kale, lettuce, leek, mustard, onions, parsnips, garden peas, turnips, and rutabagas. Part of this ground was followed in the winter with beans and spring potatoes. In the garden now will be found growing corn, cucumbers, tomatoes, squash, and a number of different ornamental plants in the ornamental nursery.

The boys of the class are busy now planting cowpeas in the garden. Cowpeas are planted and allowed to grow during the summer, then are plowed into the soil in the fall, thus adding humus and nitrogen to the soil. By doing this every year we can build up the soil and restore some of the necessary fertilizer elements to the soil. Some good cover crop should be grown on the soil every year and returned to the soil. We find cowpeas one of the best cover crops.

The school garden has been very successful this year considering the dry condition of everything, and we look forward to a greater year along these lines next year. The vegetables and plants grown by the boys on the school garden are sold and the money derived from them used in the operating expense of the garden and nursery.

FLASHES OF FLORIDA FACTS

By MORIS FOLSON

Farming in Florida.—Charles F. Leach, the son of the Cherokee farm in Jefferson county, discusses various things in the March issue of the Florida Grower under the title of "Loose Talk" from which the following is quoted:

"This off more than you can chew. And chew it. Plan more than you can do. Then do it. Hitch your wagon to a star; keep your seat. And there you are."

"That is good stuff for a farmer to take as a motto. As a matter of fact, most of us farmers do regularly every year plan to do more than we ever can do but we should make strenuous efforts to chew all we bite off and often we can do it if we chew hard enough."

"Anyhow, the winter Florida farmers learn that they must do things for themselves and not wait for someone to do it for them the winter they will be free and prosperous citizens. There never need be any such conditions in Florida as now confronts farmers of the North, from Boston to Kansas City."

"The Northern farmer finds that he can grow more profitable farm products on forty acres of real farm land in Florida than he could grow on eighty acres in the North; simply because he can grow better crops of corn, hay, potatoes and legume feeds like peanuts, soy beans, and velvet beans or barley in winter. Besides having wonderful summer pastures of carpet grass, kudzu and Bermuda grass, in summer, he can have in the winter fine pastures of hays, white, alsike, red and sweet clovers, right in his Florida soil or on the peanut, melon, potato and corn fields. But best of all he finds a profitable market for hays, milk, eggs and poultry and the highest market for Irish potatoes, turnips, rhubarb and all kinds of summer-grown vegetables, almost at his door."

COUNTY COMMISSION AP- PROVES PLAN FOR COM- PLETING KENANSVILLE ROAD

one of the better off the hard surface on the Southern end."

I construe this Article 19 to mean that if all of the work authorized in this contract could not be completed on account of insufficient funds arising from the $2,000,000.00 bond issue voted April 12, 1926, then the contractor was to be paid out of such $2,000,000.00 bond issue for the amount of work that he actually did. In other words, his contract means that if out of the $2,000,000.00 bond issue sufficient funds were available, the Kenansville road would be completed in its entirety according to the terms and conditions of the contract, but if the funds were not available out of the $2,000,000.00 bond issue to fully complete the road, then as much of it as the funds would permit would be completed.

Article 21 of the contract under consideration expressly provided that this contract is funded upon an appropriation made by the county commission, of Osceola county, Florida, by virtue of certain resolutions providing for the constructing of a system of paved roads in Osceola county and by resolutions passed by the county commission, denuding the amount and directing an election to determine the question of the issuance of bonds of said county to pay for said system of paved roads and providing further that in no event shall the county be liable for any work provided by the contract in excess of the expenditures authorized thereby.

My opinion is that the contracting has really performed more work under the contract than should have been authorized, because all of the funds of this bond issue have become exhausted with a possibility of the county still owing a sum of money for the work that was done under the contract after the $2,000,000.00 had been expended.

The mere fact, if it be a fact, that the county will be obligated to pay the contractor certain sums of money for work done by him on the Kenansville road out of funds obtained from some source other than the $2,000,000.00 bond issue will not have the effect of still holding this contract as an obligation against the county unless further work thereunder should be authorized by the board with the consideration for such additional work to be paid for from a source independent of the $2,000,000.00 bond issue.

I can not advise you to authorize further work on the Kenansville road under the terms of the contract under consideration, notwithstanding the fact that you may be able to look to an independent source for funds with which to pay for such additional work.

My suggestion out of the situation is that an accurate estimate with a strict degree of certainty be ascertained as to the amount of funds that will be available to the county from the $2,000,000.00 bond issue and that this be paid out of such remaining funds with the assistance of such engineers as may be required, only the actual amount of work which can be obtained for the balance of these funds, particular attention however, being directed to the completion of what is commonly known as the History Tree road.

My opinion is that safety to the county warrants the action and procedure suggested herein.

Respectfully submitted,

ELIAS F. DAVIS,

Attorney for Board of County Commissioners.

DR. FRANK CRANE SAYS

I am not one of those who run away with catch words, and see red at a war cry.

I am an incurable pacifist and utterly opposed to that old system under which the governments of the world still function, the system that renders rival armies and navies a necessity.

But for all that I believe the army and navy should be retained by every nation, not so much as a defense, but furnishing the best machinery of education.

I believe in military training not only for every boy but for every girl. This military training in no sense teaches training to murder or developing the lust to kill.

But it does imply certain things that are of more necessity for youth than can be supplied elsewhere.

The child learns best, by military training, the meaning of discipline and perhaps more so, are lost and bodies ruined by lack of discipline than from any other cause.

The child, by military training, has developed in him a sense of responsibility and this is the core of good citizenship.

The child, by military training, gets practical and invaluable physical development.

He learns to make use of that tonic which, more than any other, can get iron in the soul—hardship.

He learns decision; and indecision is the mother of all sins.

He learns obedience; not only obedience to his superiors but obedience to himself, which is more important.

He learns team play; and after all, the ability to co-operate is of more value to the human being than the ability to compete.

If he learns "jingoism" and the bunk about the glory of war and conquest, it is not because this sort of rubbish is in any wise essential to military training.

Military training does not imply that those who receive it shall become professional soldiers, but in a free democracy every human being is a potential soldier, he or she may be called upon at any time to sacrifice fortune or life for the common good, and perhaps the most important thing in military training is the fact that the youth has his budding ego properly pruned, he is made to feel that there is something

TREED BY WOLVES

After having lost her way in the woods near Hovettville, Wis., and been forced to remain perched in a tree for sixteen hours while a pack of hungry wolves kept a continuous vigil at the foot of the tree, Miss Helen Thomas, daughter of a crossroads storekeeper, was rescued by a posse of searchers.

In this world, more important than his own private interest.

One of the cardinal paragraphs of my creed is that every boy and girl in America should be required to give at least one year to the service of Uncle Sam.

Too many grown people are so deficient in education that they do not realize the supremacy of the claims of their nation and of humanity upon them.

Military training might easily become the very best means of developing the civic nerve. And one great trouble with the country is that too many of this nerve is strangled.

LEGALIZED EMBEZZLEMENT

By RUTH E. GORDON
National Extension Director, Inmate
Walton League of America

There are now about 10,000,000 hunters and fishermen in the United States. Many of them hunt and fish legally without licenses. The resident hunters and trappers in all states contribute annually a fee from $1.00 up to $7.50 for the privilege of participating in the chase. Quite a few states collect from $3.00 to $5.00 for a resident, statewide hunting license, the state of Washington collecting $7.50 for a statewide license.

Resident fishermen pay from $5.00 to $10.00 for a license in the majority of the states. In many other states no fishing license is required, and the funds for fish work are all contributed by the hunters—a decidedly unfair arrangement.

A number of states are issuing hunting and fishing licenses separately, or a combination license at a reduced "club price." Non residents in every instance are asked to contribute much more liberally for their licenses, the fees for visitors varying greatly and running all the way up to the steep sum of $50.00 in some instances—either a sort of keep-out-please reminder, or a make-the-good-neighbor-pay-the-bill.

All told, the sum contributed by the hunters, trappers and fishermen in the state runs upwards of $7,500,000 annually, a goodly figure, but in reality only about half as much as should be contributed to conduct the work on a broad comprehensive scale.

In many states it took years of effort to convince the legislature that they should allow the sportsmen to contribute funds with which to conduct the fish and game work. Some how it just didn't seem possible to the state solons that men should be asking for permission to contribute money for the promotion of hunting and fishing, to create refuges for wild life, etc.

Practically every dollar paid in for hunting and fishing licenses is now definitely " earmarked," and is supposed to be used only for the purpose for which contributed—more game and fish. But in a few states a form of legalized embezzlement has actually been taking place. In the meantime the sportsmen have sat on the outside looking in, and the game and fish have been disappearing.

J. C. PENNEY MEMORIAL COMMUNITY FOR MINISTERS

Jacksonville, Fla.—After dedication ceremonies which started on Friday and which were attended by many of the leading religious and educational leaders of the country, the J. C. Penney Memorial Community for retired ministers and all workers in the Christian religion was formally dedicated recently.

The dedication services, which were held in the Penney Memorial Chapel, were conducted by the Rev. Daniel A. Poling, D. D., of the Methodist Episcopal Church of New York City and the dedication sermon was preached by the Rev. Francis B. Short, D. D., also of New York City.

In the evening, Chapel Organ, donated by Ralph W. Gwin, of New York, was dedicated.

The J. C. Penney Memorial Community is the donation of Mr. J. C. Penney and was erected as a memorial to his father and mother, his father having been a Baptist minister.

It is unique both in its design and in its administration. The Community itself is made up of 22 houses, each with from three to five apartments, there being a total of 108 apartments in the buildings. These apartments are offered rent, heat, and light free to retired ministers, missionaries, Y. M.C.A. secretaries and others, it being a stipulation that they be men with families.

It is non-denominational in character, and residents up to the limit of the community are accepted upon recommendation of church boards, after they have been passed by Dr. Poling who is the personal representative of Dr. Penney.

A completely equipped chapel including a community library and meeting hall forms the key structure of the community. The houses are Norman-French in design and built of stucco. Hollow tile and metal lath with concrete, hollow tile and waterproof flooring. They are completely furnished and ready for occupancy, and are located at Penney Farms, 40 miles from Jacksonville.

Adjacent to the community is the J. C. Penney Dush Gwin Institute of Applied Agriculture with its laboratory and gardens for the conduct of scientific experiments in crop raising.

REVISION OF STATE
CONSTITUTION SOUGHT

TALLAHASSEE.—A joint resolution seeking the calling of a convention for revising the state constitution, to be held at the next general election in November, 1928, was introduced in the house of representatives by Representatives Terry, Bradenton, and Perry, Manatee.

The resolution points out the necessity for this action in view of the rapid growth of Florida and the many changed conditions. It states further that the addition of various amendments at each legislative session justifies a revised constitution.

Money needed—The Red Cross is asking for funds to help the vast numbers of sufferers from the floods in the Mississippi valley. Relief work for the storm of a year ago in South Florida shows expenditures amounting to $4,464,002.75. Every state contributed with $6,005 from Cuba; $46,508 from Japan and $4,000 from Spain.

The Mississippi valley states which are now suffering from the greatest flood in history, gave the following sums: Arkansas $8,375; Kentucky $30,795; Louisiana $35,795; Mississippi $18,593; Missouri $89,475; Tennessee $39,475. Now these states are in distress with over 300,000 persons in want, besides no crops can be made this year on thousands of farms.

Unlawful—To prevent the spread of plant diseases it is unlawful in Florida to remove woody plants from place to place, without having them inspected by a representative of the State Plant Board. Plants offered for sale or gift must have certificates of inspection attached. In spite of strict inspection at seaports the European corn borer happened to get by and the seriousness of the situation is apparent when the last Congress appropriated $10,000,000.00 to try and stop its spread. The cotton boll weevil has cost the South over a billion dollars and the corn borer, unless it is stopped, will cripple or destroy America's greatest cereal crop. Write the State Plant Board at Gainesville if you plan the removal of plants.

will be done during this summer.

The Florida Legislature has wasted more time on the foolish anti-evolu-the session is over the folks back home will be wondering why needed legislation has been overlooked.

Great care should be taken with

The Florida State News, published most fearless paper in the state in its all the papers in the state will follow

Victor county is the new name of the proposed division of Osceola county, a bill for which is now in the calendar of the present session of the legislature. They started out to make it Fletcher county. Victor of St. An-gustine was chairman of the committee in the house that had to pass on the bill, so the amended name resulted, and the committee reported the bill favorably. Whether the legislature will finally pass the measure is doubtful.

Our Flag

There is occasion in our city, as in too many places, to emphasize the obligation of citizenship when the Stars and Stripes go by.

We have heard considerable comment upon the fact that when the flag was carried at the head of a procession recently, only one man in two blocks on a main avenue took off his hat and stood at attention when the flag went by.

Unless we take this symbol of our country seriously, how can we object when it may happen to be unrespected elsewhere?

—Leesburg Morning Commercial Appeal.

New State Highway

We have been wondering what has happened to the proposed new State Highway through Osceola county from Kissimmee to Brevard county line, and on to Melbourne. From the reports given out several weeks ago, it seemed that the proposed route had been definitely decided upon, and we hoped that we should soon see steps taken that would mean the realization of our dreams of a GOOD road to the East Coast.

St. Cloud, at that time, had some discussion as to the routing of the highway through the city, but at a meeting held for the purpose of thrashing that matter out, the final decision was to follow the original route on Thirteenth street as planned by the State Engineer, and we believe, as far as this city is concerned, it has been satisfactorily settled to all concerned.

It has been rumored that our sister city, Kissimmee, is now delaying the project because they do not approve of the plans for routing through that city, and they may have just reasons for their argument—we are not in a position to judge.

However, the fact remains that the sooner we stop knocking and start co-operation, the sooner our new highway will become a fact. Dr. Foss A. Hathaway, chairman of the State Road Department, has stated that State Highway No. 24, the route under discussion, is one of the most important projects in the state, and if this is true and the people of Osceola county will give the department every possible co-operation, this road will without a doubt be rushed to an early completion.

Let's throw away our hammers and put our shoulders to the wheel. The present road to the East Coast is rapidly going into decay, and will soon be almost impassable. Let's get busy and start action that will see the new road under construction at the very earliest possible date.

Steps should be immediately taken to secure the necessary right-of-way. It is understood that the contract for construction will be let in sections, and that if the right-of-way to any section is secured, work can be started on that section. Let's lend every effort to see this work started.

This road means much not only to St. Cloud, but to Kissimmee, Holopaw, and other sections of the county as well. As individuals and organizations, we should do our part by boosting and co-operating in every way until this important highway is completed.

Hook-Up

Agriculture's friends in Federal affairs have evidently adopted the time honored policy that "there is more than one way to skin a cat." News from Washington tells us quite positively that thoughts for farm relief is by no means a dead issue. In fact it is as much alive as at the moment it seemed about to become an actuality this spring.

Agricultural leaders in Washington are now busy searching about for "hook-up" legislation upon which to tack another Mc-Nary-Haugen bill, with the idea of forcing the next congress and the administration to accept it or see perhaps their pet bill, whatever it may be, go down to defeat.

Already leaders of the American Farm Bureau Federation, The National Grange and the Farmers' National Union have arranged an October meeting in Washington to prepare a program for a farm relief campaign, and have it ready and waiting for Congress when it convenes in December.

The "hook-up" may be made with the Mississippi flood legislation which will then come up and, which at this time, seemingly is assured of action. With flood relief and farm relief a joint issue, backed by the agricultural bloc in Congress, there is hope of pushing a McNary-Haugen measure through.

Chester H. Gray of the American Farm Bureau; L. J. Taber, president and Frederick Breckman of the National Grange have already informed the President that sentiment amongst the farmers is still strong for the equalization fee feature of the McNary-Haugen bill, and that any bill to find favor must provide funds to help them market crops.

It is generally known that farm-relief advocates are going to point long and earnestly at "pig iron" and its increased tariff, in making demand for federal aid in agriculture. It will be brought to mind that nearly everything said which "could not be done for agriculture" was done almost immediately for pig iron through increased tariff. In other words, "Government price fixing" seems okay for industry—but not to be thought of for more than 4,000-000 farmers.

Capital Punishment Is Wrong

"The question of capital punishment is opposed to because nobody is willing himself to kill a man. Killing certainly does the man no good. It doesn't reform him, and he doubts whether it does society any good," says a well known public man.

When a man reaches the point where he wants to kill another man he doesn't care whether he himself gets killed.

The thing of inflicting the extreme penalty upon a man is a practical one. It is not based upon consideration for the man, but upon regard for society. It is supposed to deter others from serious crimes.

Opponents of capital punishment say that as a matter of deterrent it does no good. They bring statistics to support this argument and claim that the more severe punishments are the wider is the spread of crime. Those in favor of capital punishment deny this.

About the worst thing that could happen to most men is to lose life. People who are afraid of nothing else fear death.

In its effort to protect human life, society uses the old argument of fear and claims that people will be prevented from killing others best of all by being in danger of being killed themselves.

It is all a piece with the whole fear argument. Time was when men were supposed to be made better by the fear of hell and youth is supposed to be kept in check by the fear of their evil deeds in later life.

A man will risk his life where he will not risk his property.

If we want to stop crime the thing to do is to remedy the conditions that make crime and not merely indulge in the vengeance of killing.

Killing is vengeance only. It is not punishment.

The argument against imprisonment for life has its chief support in the fact that by and by the prisoner will be pardoned by the Governor. Take this pardoning power away from the Governor for the present and lodge it in a board selected by the courts.
Have all pardons issued by this board and relieve the Governor of the pressure that is brought on him to issue pardons.

In this way imprisonment for life will be made surer and one will not receive a pardon unless he is properly entitled to it.

development of their city into an enterprising community that all who live in it might prosper

FLORIDA STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Eradication of the cattle tick in areas where the work has been completed by the State Livestock Sanitary Board has resulted in a complete reversal of opinion on the tick question, according to Dr. J. V. Knapp, State Veterinarian. In many counties in West Florida, where the work got under way with many of the people objecting to it, the original opponents of dipping now declare they would not go back to the old condition of things under any circumstances.

Liberty county, immediately east of the Apalachicola River, has been struggling for some years as a result of the depletion of its timber. It possesses few farms, has no incorporated towns and its population has dwindled to something like 4,000. Liberty does possess many range cattle, however.
With eradication of the tick, Liberty is preparing to convert itself into a cattle raising county. It has recently received a car load of the finest strains of Aberdeen-Angus sires and has arranged for a second car load to be delivered next fall. Other counties in the recently freed sections also are preparing to import blooded sires, according to Dr. Knapp, and from twelve to fifteen car loads of such cattle will be brought into the territory during the fall.

There is no argument over the assertion that a profitable dairy industry and the cattle tick can not exist side by side, according to officials of the State Livestock Sanitary Board.
West and North Florida counties, realizing this fact, are working over time to eradicate the tick and build up dairy herds in order to produce milk in large quantities for a profitable market, Florida itself. The city of Miami alone imported 1,664,198 gallons of fluid milk during 1926, according to Dr. Knapp, of which 413,240 gallons were utilized for manufacturing purposes. In January 1927 one dairy company in Miami imported 10,900 gallons from Pennsylvania, 16,030 gallons from Alabama and diverted 13,000 gallons of locally produced milk to manufacturing purposes. One company in Tampa was reported by milk inspectors as receiving 150 gallons of cream daily from Ohio and 100 gallons daily from Georgia, while another company in the same city was receiving 180 gallons from Jacksonville shipped in from another state. The significance of these figures, declared Dr.
Knapp, is in the fact that each gallon of cream represents six gallons of fluid milk. These 350 gallons of cream going to Tampa daily, therefore, represents 63,000 gallons of milk monthly, the veterinarian asserted.
Jacksonville is importing approximately 6,000 gallons of cream monthly.

The average number of persons per dairy cow in the United States as a whole, is about five to one, according to Dr. John R. Mohler, Chief of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry, United States Department of Agriculture. In a recent statement, Dr. Mohler added that the ratio in Florida is ten to one.

H. R. Smith, live stock commissioner of the National Live Stock Exchange, Chicago, declares that Florida produces only 10 per cent of the beef it consumes and adds that in eradicating the tick the state is laying the foundation for what is destined to be an important source of wealth. Mr. Smith in discussing the grade of cattle sent to the slaughter house, states that the plant of Swift & Company at Mountrie, Ga., paid an average of only $1.90 per hundred pounds, indicating that the bulk of cattle slaughtered in this section were of the native piggy woods type. The Montrie plant handles quantities of Florida cattle. Mr. Smith added that the manager of the Montrie plant has told him they would rather pay double that sum for cattle having more quality and flesh. Against this figure of 1.90 cents per pound seventy-five per cent of the cattle consumed in Florida last year in the form of beef imported from other states, cost from eight to ten cents a pound in the northern markets. If Florida can produce cattle of good quality, which can be done in tick free areas, says this authority, they will command a price of advantage to the producer.

Eradication of the tick makes it possible to grade up for quality, declares Mr. Smith, and this is what West Florida is setting out to do by importing pure bred sires for crossing with the native cattle. The beginning of eradication work in Taylor county has resulted in the sale of more than twenty thousand head of cattle to an Oklahoma concern. The Taylor county cattlemen disposed of their stock with the agreement that they could retain such cattle as were desirable for breeding purposes and they are arranging to import pure bred sires as soon as the county is free from the tick.

Jefferson County, where tick eradication work has just gotten under way, has received within the last few months several of the finest show herds of Jerseys and Holsteins in Canada and the United States. The county was not free from ticks when these cattle arrived, but their owners began a year ago to make preparations to move them to Florida and the limited areas upon which they were demanded were freed of the pest by fence-ing and other methods prior to their arrival. Jefferson is now producing approximately 1,000 gallons of milk daily but without a creamery or milk depot of its own is forced to haul its surplus to Madison for disposal. Madison County's dairy industry is growing because of precautions taken against the tick by the cattle owners in limited areas, prior to the beginning of work by the state.

If there is any doubt about the damage wrought by the cattle tick a report made by the County Agent in Lery county a year ago should settle the question. An investigation he made disclosed that within a year thirty per cent of the range cattle in that county had died of the fever resulting from the tick bite.

FLORIDA MISSION FOR THE DEAF

Frank E. Philpott, Supt.

The deaf ladies of St. Cloud are making preparations to serve free luncheon on June 5th to visitors who will come from the hub of Central Florida to attend the Silent Bible class in the morning and the monthly service in the afternoon at the Methodist Episcopal church. It is anticipated that between thirty and forty visitors will attend these meetings.

It does not worry the mission a bit where St. Cloud will celebrate the glorious Fourth of July, for the whole populace of deafness has chosen Melbourne as the ideal place to enjoy the week-end holiday. By request the mission will conduct a service there on Sunday, July the third. On the following Monday an all-day picnic at the beach, followed by surf bathing and other forms of recreation, will be the principal feature of the outing.

Next Sunday a service for colored deaf will be held in the Harmony Baptist church at Lakeland at 2:00 p. m. Preaching by the missioner and singing by three members of the mission will feature the program. At the last service there for whites, two of the colored men were among the attendants; no interested they were in the service that they requested the mission to conduct a similar service for the benefit of their brethren, deaf and hearing, at a not distant date.

Though small in attendance due to unemployment of some of the deaf, interest and enthusiasm continued unabated at the Tampa service on May the eighth, twenty-three persons being present whereas on the previous occasion twenty-nine attended. Among the married folks were noticed seven mother's on Mothers' Day.

The Silent Bible class every Sunday morning at the Methodist Episcopal church and the preaching service here and out of town every two or four weeks will be maintained throughout the summer months.

At the Tampa service an appeal was made for a relief fund to be raised and sent to the flood relief through the American Red Cross. Accordingly the mission will this week forward five dollars which, in addition to other funds, will help to alleviate the suffering of the unfortunate victims.

Singing is an invaluable adjunct to church worship, and the mission has been fortunate enough to secure singers at each service. Favorable comment has been made by hearing people on this "poetry of motion."

The many supporters of the mission, realizing as they do that the missioner is handicapped in his work at the several stations due to lack of quicker transportation than bus or train, are devising ways and means whereby the superintendent may be provided with a car, which will enable him to cover as large a field of Christian endeavor as possible.

The growth of the mission is, in a large measure, attributed to the vision of the pastor of the local Methodist church Dr. Ivor G. Hyndman, who foresaw the necessity of this organization so that the deaf of the state might be helped spiritually as well as materially. Originally the work was confined to this locality; now it has been extended to six stations with the prospect of more in the fall.

Although the mission has been founded under the auspices of the Methodist church silent people of various denominations are to be found at every service.

SONS OF UNION SOLDIERS ATTENTION

A few words to the sons of Union Soldiers of the war of sixty-one and sixty-five! Do you know you are under a great obligation to your father and his comrades, both living and dead, for the prosperity you are now enjoying in this greatest country on earth? Most of you in this city of St. Cloud are well to do business men; just stop and think where you would be today if your fathers had made the excuses some of you do today, and had not given four years of their young lives to keep us from being like Mexico, fighting each other East, West, North and South.

At the Division Encampment this year at Miami, fifty Sons of Confederate Veterans, in uniform, came to a G. A. R. Encampment marching in with the stars and stripes, their National Commander at their head, and made patriotic speeches that brought tears to the eyes of the hundreds of G. A. R. veterans. One said, among other things, "This is my flag just as much as your flag, for although I am a son of a rebel and my father fought four years for what he thought was right, I fought in the Spanish-American and Philippine and, lastly, the World wars, side by side with boys of the northland with 'Old Glory' floating over all of us, and we will protect this noble banner with our lives the same as you did when you fought our fathers in the skies."

Now, sons of noble sires, come and join our camp at least one hundred of you. Don't wait to be asked give your name and initiation fee to our brother secretary John Curtis the St. Cloud postmaster. Don't let the American Legion do all the patriotic work and remember the G. A. R. wants you to perpetuate their order; you are their sons and heirs and will go down through the ages the same as the sons and daughters of the Revolution.

You can travel far a foot a mile and have all other benefits of the G. A. R.

Loving your Brother
HUGH C. PERKINS
Patriotic Instructor G. A. R.

Misses Myrtle Welch and Carrie Adams, of Columbus, Ohio, who spent the winter in one of the pleasant Krepps apartments, have returned home more than pleased with St. Cloud.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. S. Phillips and son, Junior, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Louke and Miss Ethel Fellows spent Tuesday in Howey-in-the-Hills.

ARCHERY TOURNAMENT POSTPONED

The St. Cloud-Orlando shoot which was to have been held in Orlando last Saturday has been postponed until the 21st. This was on account of the fact that the weather last Saturday was very unpropitious. It is hoped that several cars from this city will attend the meet. Several archers of national prominence will be there and an interesting shoot is anticipated.

The team shoot between the two cities will decide the permanent possession of the St. Cloud archers' trophy, each team having won twice, and this shoot being the last and decisive one.

The targets here have been moved from the lots adjacent to the park over on to Florida avenue, where a greater range is available than we had.

DAUGHTERS OF UNION VETERANS

The regular meeting of Mother Bickerslyke Tent No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans, was held in the G. A. R. Hall, Tuesday, May 17, at 2:30 p. m., with President Emma Raymond in the chair. Roll call found all members present except the press correspondent, Mrs. Mary Van Meter, and the musician, Mrs. Lola Harrison-Brown. These officers were filled by Mrs. Nettie Clark and Mrs. Minnie Barber.

National General Orders No. 4 were read, announcing the National Encampment of the G. A. R., which is to be held at Dayton, Ohio, September 11, with headquarters at Gibson hotel. A special railroad rate will allow a one way fare ticket to cover the cost of the round trip. The national aids appointed from our Tent are Mrs. Emma T. Raymond and Mrs. Nettie Clark.

Department orders No. 1, issued by our new Department President Mrs. Nettie Severn were read. Forty sick calls were reported. An acknowledgment and thanks from chairman of the Red Cross committee, Mrs. Helen Ellis, and member of the executive board, B. L. Street, for our contribution of $10.00 to the flood sufferers, was read. An excellent report from Mrs. Jennie Tucker, delegate to the Department Encampment at Miami, was given. Mrs. Minnie Barber was installed as musician by Past Department President Mrs. Clara Fuller. The new pass word was given, followed by our children's experience meeting, everyone relating how she had earned her dollar, which was quite amusingly told in poetry and prose. The amount realized was $10.00.

The Daughters will have charge of the fourth Saturday, May 28, program of the Veterans' Association at the G. A. R. Hall. Special attention was called to Memorial Day, Monday, May 30, that we may honor in a fitting manner our fathers and all others who have fought for our country and our flag and have answered the last roll call.

A Salute to Florida.—Richard B. Edmunds, editor of the Manufacturers Record, Baltimore, Md., who knows our state from long observation, was asked by the editor of the Florida Grower, of Tampa, to give his opinion of Florida and this is what he said:
"My admiration for this truly wonderful state, its resources, beauty and climate, is I might say, boundless. My confidence in its future is as unshakable as a thing were possible. As matters now stand, the future of this great section of the nation is assured far beyond anything the average man would have dreamed of only five or six years ago. Nature has been lavish with her blessings of soil, climate, rivers, lakes, ocean and the gulf, and the country at large is awakening to its marvelous potentiality."

Runaway Boys.—Young boys are regularly found in Florida cities and towns, who run away from northern homes to see the world and make their fortunes. It has always been so, John Keats, in one of his early poems, under the title of The Same, says: There was a naughty boy,

And a naughty boy was he,
He ran away to see the world,
The people for to see—
Then he found
That the ground
Was as hard,
That a yard
Was as long,
That a song
Was as merry
Was a cherry
Was as red—
That land
Was as weighty,
That four score
Was as slighty,
That a shoe
Was as wooden
As in England—
So he stood in his shoes
And he wonder'd
He wonder'd,
He stood in his shoes
And he wonder'd.

LEGISLATURE IS NOW HALF WAY TO END

TALLAHASSEE, May 17.—Florida House of Representatives celebrated the passing of the first half of the 1927 session yesterday by passing two of what are considered important measures, by voting one proposed new law down by a decisive majority, and by passing three other measures of a general nature. It considered, also, quite a number of bills on second reading, and received forty-three additional pieces of proposed legislation into its hopper.

Yesterday was the thirtieth day of the session. With the session this morning the General Assembly starts on the second half. But there are still more than four weeks to go. The session ends, constitutionally, on Friday, June 3, four weeks from tomorrow.

Cholera Serum
In addition to the passage of the motor vehicle committee bill the House, yesterday afternoon, after an hour short, wordy battle over the amount of the appropriation, passed the Senate bill providing for $60,000 a year for the purchase of hog cholera serum and virus, to be used in fighting hog cholera in Florida. Immediately after the measure came up on second reading S. W. Gerson of Sumner offered an amendment, having the proposed appropriation. The amendment brought forth defenses of the bill from Representatives Bishop of Jefferson, Mackenzie of Lake Park, and LaFayette and Smith of Jackson. It was urged that it will be one of the very few measures of the present session that will benefit, directly, the farmers.

Amendment Lost
The amendment was lost by a considerable majority. Thereafter W. W. Webster of Jackson offered an amendment reducing the appropriation to $50,000 a year, in line with the recommendations of the House committee. On a roll call vote, however, it was lost. On motion of Mr. Octeen, then, the measure was advanced to third reading and passed without a dissenting vote.

It was worthy of note that virtually every Representative from the East Coast of Florida voted consistently with the West Florida group to kill amendments, and then voted for the appropriation itself. Proposal to prohibit, under severe penalties, setting fire to wild forests, land or marshes by other than the owner of the lands, brought a storm of protest from W. A. O'Neil of Hernando, who declared that forests must be burned. Neither law nor bonus, in some sections, could live unless the forests were burned, he said, on account of the mosquitoes that breed so rapidly, did the undergrowth remain unburned.

Die of Bites
His protest reached the House when he declared horses and cattle would die of the bites, and the bill was ordered committed to the committee on livestock, after a motion had been passed waiving the rules and advancing it to third reading and for passage.

The House passed the Booth of Pinellas bill, permitting municipalities to improve property to the extent of placing mortgages on real estate; another bill of Pinellas measures, pertaining to married women's earnings and still a third by the same sponsor providing for the permanent improvement of money, under the direction of the court, may be made by guardians.

A proposal of Mr. Booth to change the law to allow claims against estates to be filed, unverified by oath, with administrators or executors, and not with the county judges, went down to defeat by a vote of 31 to 13. It was the first bill to be killed this session in a roll call vote on its passage.

Many meteors fell to the earth during a year, but there is apparently no record of one killing a person. One of the nearest approaches to such an accident was reported recently from England by a cyclist who declared that a meteor within seven yards of him while he was riding at night.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By KEITH L. BROOKS
(Managing Editor "The King's Business," Secretary Correspondence Courses of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles)
MAY 22, 1927
PETER HEALS THE LAME MAN
Lesson Text—Acts 3:1-10; 4:8-10

The story of Peter and John and the lame man at the Temple gate is of special interest as the first healing miracle in the Church following Pentecost. The place of miracles in the present dispensation is a subject on which there has been much controversy.

Some seem to think that supernatural powers were possessed in the early Church to be passed on to the Church. There seems to be no evidence, however, that the apostles continued to accompany the Gospel with miracles, signs and wonders (Heb. 2:3-4) after the message became general and expected after the Gospel was committed to writing. The so-called miracles of modern "healers" bear no likeness to the miracles performed in the first days of the Church. Those the Scriptures inform us were credentials proving the divine authority of the apostles and the heavenly origin of the Church.

In one sense miracles have never ceased, for in answer to the prayer of the righteous, God often interposes in a miraculous way. History and experience, however, show that the apostles had powers which were not to be continued.

The miracle recorded in this lesson is given in great detail, and is certainly a typical incident containing great lessons for the Church.

It should reach us, in the first place, that the mission of the Church is to the poor and helpless. The beggar at the gate is the type of humanity without God and without hope (Eph. 2:12). There he was surrounded by material grandeur but hopeless, until touched by the power of Jesus' name.

In this day of materialism and individualism we may well insist on the great truth taught by this miracle. The Church begins by dealing with the poor and needy. When we get beyond that, we may as well close our doors. A Church in the hands of people of wealth and leisure is a mere social club without message and without power. Christianity must be essentially a religion of the masses. Its founder was a great carpenter. His entire "to preach the Gospel to the poor," the first commandment was "Blessed are the poor in spirit."

Watch Peter and John dealing with this needy man at the Temple gate. They are patterns for personal workers. Note the mystery of the eyes. "Peter fastened his eyes upon him." What do you see in the path of duty? Many have passed this poor fellow and turned up their noses at the deplorable sight. They cared to see only the beautiful gate, the stately Temple, the gay costumes. Peter and John saw a man afflicted, a soul lost.

What we see indicates the depth of our religion. A young physician helping in an east London mission was turning out the lights one night when he saw a beggar in a dark corner. The beggar begged to be allowed to sleep there. The doctor took him home for the night. He learned that the beggar had been sleeping with many other boys in a coal bin. The doctor went through many muddy alleys, and peering through a hole in the wall, saw thirteen boys huddled together. Dr. Barnardo's eyes took in something that night. Children to the number of 50,000 were cared for, up to the time of his death, under Christian influences in the homes which he had started.

Next comes the ministry of the lips. "Peter with John said, Look on us" (v. 4). They proceeded to testify of Christ, and in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth bade him rise up and walk (v. 6, 7). Christ has no silent partners. Our prayers for the salvation of men are better irony when we refuse to open our lips in testimony, exhortation and praise.

Some say if we live Christianity it is not necessary to talk it. If we do not speak of Christ, who gets the credit for our good living? Self only.

Along with the ministry of the eyes and lips went the ministry of the hand. Peter "took him by the right hand and lifted him up" (v. 7). The combination for reaching men is prayer and pain. The right hand of fellowship and power had much to do with lifting this man on his feet. The extending of the helping hand was something Peter learned from Jesus (Mk. 1:31).

The hand is peculiar to the human being. Its touch is often more eloquent than words. Robert Murray McChesney, Scotch soul winner, died at 27 and all Scotland wept. An American preacher supplying in Dundee years afterward, found one of the old parishioners still living. He tried to learn from him something about McChesney. No sermon or text could the old man remember. One thing remained with him. He was a boy by the roadside. McChesney came along, placed his hand on his head and said, "Jamie, I must have you for Jesus." The old man could not forget the trembling of the young preacher's fingers in his hair. No more eloquent gesture did he ever make.

The action of the man who was instantly healed is typical of what should ever be taking place in a Church that is doing its work. "Leaping up he began to walk and entered with them into the temple walking and leaping and praising God" (v. 8).

Is there no one these days who is getting happy over salvation? If a man has been redeemed, body and soul, must he restrain his feelings? Happy Christians are God's advertising. The eloquence of the pew is worth more than that of the pulpit.

"All the people saw him walking and praising God" (v. 8). Then they all became happy. There can be no joy in a church unless souls are being happily saved and prayer is being answered. When the shout of new life comes in a church, it means that the church is ready for its funeral, for no prayer or personal work has been going on.

There is one fellow in the story who is often overlooked—the man who carried the lame man and laid him daily at the temple gate (v. 2). If we can not ourselves point a man to Christ and life him up to God, we can at least carry him to someone who can. If we cannot work like Peter, If we cannot preach like Paul, We can show the love of Jesus. How he died to save us all.

PITH AND POINT

Peter and John on the way to church—and in the line of duty came opportunity.

There are times when we may well postpone devotions to lighten the misery of a soul.

Lame sinners will look on us with interest when we look on them with love.

"Silver and gold have I none"—empty pockets may go with the truest wealth.

"In the name of Jesus Christ rise up and walk"—the hand of compassion is powerless unless it is extended in that name.

"What I have I give thee." He is the poor man who has nothing but money.

It is a bad sign when a new-born Christian has lungs as weak he can not be heard (1 Cor. 8:3).

"Peter filled with the Holy Ghost" (4:8). Peter by himself was a straw blown by the wind, but Peter plus power was a mighty man of God.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

Comparing the results of the miracle by Peter and John, to what may the man's leaping up (v. 8) be likened? (Eph. 2:13).

Noting the next step (the shoe, v. 8), what did he have beside new life? (Eph. 6:13, 14).

"He walked" (v. 8). To what may this progress be compared in a young Christian's life? (2 Cor. 5:7).

"He entered with them into the temple" (v. 8). What is suggested by this fellowship with the disciples? (1 Cor. 12:13).

He kept on walking before them all (v. 9). What does this suggest concerning a Christian? (Rom. 8:4).

What is suggested by his leaping before them all? (v. 8) (cf. Neh. 8:10).

What is the parallel concerning his praising God? (Heb. 2:12).

GOLDEN TEXT ILLUSTRATION

Golden Text: "Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven whereby we must be saved." (Acts 4:12).

A party of hunters were crossing a prairie. At evening they had encamped and were cooking supper. Suddenly a man who sat at the tent door looked toward the west. His eyes bulged and he turned ashen pale. Not a word could he speak. Others saw the look of horror on his face and gazed in the same direction only to take on the same terrified expression. There, stretching from east to west, was a yellow streak on the horizon. They knew it was a prairie fire. There was no escape as it traveled faster than any horse could run. It would be futile to try to escape. It meant sure death. Suddenly one man came to his senses. Ordering the men in great haste, he set them to fighting the grass near the camp. They fanned it on, starting another fire going on from them. Then he yelled, "Men, come over on the burned part, and you are safe."

The slender look out on the horizon in a time of great reflection and realism that the sure judgment of God is coming. He cannot help himself. "Whither shall I flee from the wrath of God?" He looks around the other way. He sees Jesus on Calvary's cross, and there upon the Son of God another judgment is being poured out. He hears a voice, "It is finished"—then the invitation, "Come over where the fire has been. Get on ground with Jesus and find the only way of escape from the oncoming judgment." He steps over and the fire passes. There is no other place of safety.

Grapefruit Pie—In talking about pie the other day, wonder was expressed that Florida did not have a recipe for making pie from grapefruit. In the production of which our state leads the world. Nobody had ever heard of grapefruit pie. That same day I found the following recipe in a Boston paper, a case of going away from home for news. Here is the recipe:
One cup water, 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons of corn starch, pinch of salt, juice from one grapefruit. Let boil five minutes; add yolks of two eggs. Remove from stove as soon as eggs are added, set aside to cool.
Fill a rich pastry shell, which has been baked, with the mixture and frost with the whites of 3 eggs beaten stiff, 6 tablespoons of sugar and 2 tablespoons of grapefruit juice.
Brown it, and you have the real thing.

UNDENOMINATIONAL

American Stage Finer Than Ever;
Truth Not Immoral, Says Belasco

The American stage is improving. So says David Belasco, dean of the theatrical profession and author of more successful plays than any other living playwright.

"This improvement," said Mr. Belasco speaking recently in New York, "is apparent in the fact that many of the self-styled 'Intelligentsia' so strongly condemn it. They have been reduced to that attitude by the rapid growth in recent years of average appreciation and knowledge of the theatre. This being the case, only a dissenting attitude is left to those who cultivate the pose of superiority. Formerly a mere handful understood anything about the theatre."

"I am often asked if the plays of today are less moral than formerly. They are not. They are merely more truthful. They are no longer padded with mid-Victorianism. It is surely better to tell the truth, since truth is the only force that has ever led to real reform, in the theatre or in life. Sincerity is always amenable to reason. It is only the hypocrite and the sycophant who can 'smile and smile and be a villain still.'"

"Nor is there, I am sure, any permanent school of playwrighting. My school changes with every play I write. When I find myself hawking a formula for writing plays, I'll stop. There should be a constant growth and change in subjects, settings and effects. That the public really wants this newness and growth is indicated by the strikingly favorable response of the public to my latest production, 'Lulu Belle'."

"When I produce a play that really grips people, I am deluged with letters and Greeting Cards. They show me that I am on the right track, whatever the critics may say. For these letters and Greeting Cards, express the mind of the people, for whom, after all, producers and playwrights work. The greatly increased use of Greeting Cards has given us a better check on popular taste than the producer of the past ever had."

"In producing 'Lulu Belle' I have dramatized a colored Carmen on a Harlem street corner; in a mixed colored and white cabaret; and finally in her gorgeous boudoir in the house of a French nobleman. It is the story of a tragic and sordid life. But it is the truth of this type of life, and I have been both praised and criticized for showing it. But there is an eternal satisfaction in truth, which, like all things eternal, is bound to be resented."

David Belasco

RURAL COMMON SENSE

DON'T TAKE CHANCES WITH RABIES; HAVE DOGS VACCINATED

Doesn't it just beat the band how people are inclined to take chances? It seems that we are a chance-loving people, and thrive on taking chances.

Now there is the question of rabies in dogs. I saw in the paper the other day where a lady was bitten by a mad dog several months ago, and only recently did she become affected and die. Usually, when a mad dog bites a human, the person becomes affected pretty soon if treatment is not taken to prevent it.

Rabies are nearly always fatal, once they have affected a person. However, there are two good ways of preventing rabies. One is for persons bitten by mad dogs to take the Pasteur treatment at once. The other is to vaccinate the dogs and prevent them from going mad.

Now that the hunting season is over and more dogs are running free, rabies occurs more frequently. Every dog owner should protect his dog and also himself, his family and his neighbors, by having his dog vaccinated against rabies by a veterinarian. The vaccination is simple, and does not hurt the dog. It is usually effective for a year or more.

BOUND to the NORTH

Jeanne Beaufort, beautiful daughter of a Virginia planter, has lost her father and two brothers in the Civil War. (The year 1864.) She awaits to

Mrs. Wetmore, her aunt, that she will carry out the bloodiest mission for vengeance—"an eye for an eye!" While at Richmond she meets

Henry Morgan, a debonaire young officer, who falls in love with her. She repels his advances. She is engaged as a spy for the Confederate government and urged to use all the wiles and power of her sex to find one Parson Kennedy and bring him within the Southern lines. It is planned to have her make headquarters with a family of southern sympathizers in Washington. Jeanne learns telegraphy and other technical branches of her new calling. And as a boy often in the line of the North, she makes her way through the lines. She learns of an organization of eleven Union spies, and of their meeting place in a Richmond loft. As she overhears the leader's address, the masked men seated about a table, Jeanne is discovered and dragged into the room. The leader unmasks as he threatens her with death, but is dissuaded from shooting her by the suggestion from one of the men that one of their number marry her. She consents and when one of the masked men volunteers to marry she refuses and claims the right to choose.

She rejects the volunteer and selects the one who suggested the marriage. His name is "Irony." To her surprise the leader is no other than Parson Kennedy. He performs the ceremony. "Irony" says his name is among those who sign as witnesses, (just before they leave her hand), in the following code form:

John Kennedy, D. D.
C-W-G-L H-H-D-M
A-N-K-S P-A-G-A
G-H-D-A J-N-K-P
J-W-G-A P-H-N-S
F-W-G-S W-B-B-H

Later Jeanne learns that Morgan is a spy.

To her surprise she receives a letter bearing the curious device she had seen tattooed on her husband's arm. The letter, ironical in its tone, shows that her unknown husband is still in Richmond and knows the name and identity of his wife! She cuts her hair, stains her face and, going to Baltimore, assumes the name of Alice Trent, not knowing such a person lived in Baltimore.

An intoxicated man accosts Jeanne and she is rescued by Captain John Armitage, a young Union officer whom she calls her assumed name.

CHAPTER X

Washington

Jeanne's hostess gave a reception in September to one of the South American ministers; and it was at this affair that Morgan was presented to "Alice Trent" while she was engaged in animated debate with Captain Armitage. She made room for the new arrival, and for a while divided her attention and attractions between the two men. She was called away presently.

"Charming young woman," was Morgan's comment. "Where is she from?"

"Baltimore, I believe," Armitage turned an inquiring eye upon Morgan.

"Where do you keep yourself?"

"Under the Secretary's thumb. I am beginning to weary of the position."

"Going"—as Armitage roared.

"Work." With a curt nod, Armitage departed.

"When he was sure that Armitage had left the house, Morgan went in search of Jeanne.

"I haven't been to see you because I dared not. I fancy I'm being watched—for what purpose I don't know as yet. I am making you a diagram of a certain house. There will be a secret message to the attic. You will find a table there. In the drawer you will place once a week—preferably Thursdays—whatever important facts you pick up. I'll attend to the rest of it."

"If you will be at the Capitol at nine tomorrow morning, I'll give you something to do for me personally."

"I am always and ever at your service. Good-by, then, until tomorrow."

He went away with the old enigmatical smile on his lips; and Jeanne fell to comparing the two men. When a young woman begins to compare two men of her acquaintance, it is a danger signal for one of them; she is about to place in her permanent regard one who she has just met.

Promptly at nine the next morning Jeanne stopped her carriage before the capitol. Morgan was strolling along, apparently engaged in studying the cracks in the sidewalk.

"Mr. Morgan!" she called.

He looked up, paused and raised his hat.

"Good morning, Miss Trent."

"Step in and I will drop you wherever you say."

"That is very good of you. I was going to one of the recruiting stations. The work is slow."

All this was of course for the benefit of the driver. When they were on their way, when the noise drowned their voices, she handed him a note. He opened it.

"What's this?"

"I want you to find out who those men are. They belong to the Secret Service, or an arm of it. One of them will have a tattooed mark on his left forearm. Have you ever run across a man named Parson Kennedy?"

"The Parson? Frequently."

"I want that man where I can talk to him without being disturbed. He can tell me what those letters mean."

"Would an abduction serve?"

"It would."

"Then everything falls out, doesn't it?"

"We'll talk of that later."

"Well, you shall see Parson Kennedy twice tonight—once at Sumner's and again in a certain hut by the Potomac. I'll give you the directions. But what's in the air?"

"That is my affair." But she softened the retort with a smile.

"You are wearing a wig; you have dyed your hair. If I did not know you with the eyes of love, I'd have some difficulty in recognizing you. Please pardon my asking you a question: your arms and shoulders?"

"I have not neglected them. You saw that last night. But if you think this is a good opportunity to make love to me, you are mistaken. In this game of espionage we are partners; but beyond that, nothing."

"Who can say? Do you think I will ever give you up?"

"Here is your recruiting station. I had best drop you. What is that soldier tugging at? 'Dead or alive'—Dead is—then come and tell me."

He came back smiling with his lips but covertly warning her with his eyes.

"It's a dodge for the apprehension of Jeanne Beaufort, dead or alive—medium height, slender, handsome, dark eyes, very pale, dull copper-colored hair; wears boy's clothes successfully."

"A woman spy? How interesting!"

"Figure God, you are a gallant woman!" he whispered. Aloud he said: "Thanks for the lift, Miss Trent."

She smiled back at him as she drove off.

Dead or alive! But she went shopping. Jeanne Beaufort, dead or alive! How small she was, how helpless—and how long that arm suddenly reaching out for her! So, after all these months, they had found out who she was. Slender, handsome, very pale. Immediately everything became eyes.

Dead or alive! She was a coward. She wanted to run away and hide; she wanted the strong, comforting arms of her Aunt Della; she wanted her room at home.

Dead or alive! The wheels clattered; the hoofs of the horses beat time to it.

But her indomitable spirit did not long remain crushed.

She traced this catastrophe to the man who had entered her room. She knew now he had been hunting for her photograph. Well, he hadn't found it. She possessed but one, and that was at home. After all she had been expecting this. She had known that she could not go on forever, indefinitely without leaving some positive trace of her individuality. Let them catch her if they could; forewarned and forearmed.

She reached home at noon, at the precise moment Parson Kennedy entered the private office of the chief of the Secret Service bureau.

"Kennedy, we've found the name of your scorpion as you call her. We've sent out doggers, dead or alive stuff. The description is accurate because it—H-D-A is a humpkin where women are concerned. A paper found on a dead man and signed opened up the way for G-R-D-A. He has seen her but once, and this description is from memory."

"The name?"

"Wait a moment. You told me a remarkable tale the other night, or part of one. I have every reason to believe that the young woman and your scorpion are one and the same. Her name is Jeanne Beaufort; and she is particularly good in assuming boy and young men roles."

"He has not out to find a photograph of her, and if there is one, he'll get it."

"Jeanne Beaufort—if we find her, it will be in Washington, mark my words."

"The man you suspect goes nowhere."

"Sounds a rat, likely."

"They have hanged poor Fogarty."

Kennedy bent his head. "He was a brave young man. I came to ask for Armitage. I want him to follow me for the next twelve hours and never let me slip out of his sight. I've been threatened again."

"You shall have Armitage. I'm glad you spoke as you did. He was about to rejoin his regiment."

There were several arms to the secret service in these days, and the most important one was of course the military.

The War Office and the Secret Service bureau had authority to draw a man from his regiment in all cases except when he was under fire. A good spy had to be a ready thinker, of flashings, of swift invention—and above all, young. It was the middle-aged who carefully weighed everything and then started forward just a little too late. Parson Kennedy was the exception.

When he left the Sumner place that night, he dismissed his hired carriage. The hired coachman drove off, muttering into his beard, while the two young men covering inside cowered softly in chagrin.

But they in turn for once had looked farther ahead than Parson Kennedy; and before he had walked two blocks, three men fell about of him. Strong as he was, he was not superhuman. They forced some pungent liquid through his teeth and a cloth was held over his nose.

When he came out of his stupor, he found himself securely bound to a chair. Near by was a common table, and on this a single candle burned.

A candle—how? How far was he from the city? Where was Armitage?

When the last phase of darkness left his eyes he dimly saw two shadowy forms by the candle door. The shatter spoke in a half-whisper.

"Send the men away and you guard the door from the outside."

"He is a dangerous man."

"Not at this moment. Do as I say."

The taller man went out reluctantly to obey orders. A boyish figure approached Parson Kennedy and stood with folded arms. Kennedy could not see the face, for the hat was drawn down too far; but he wondered where he had seen that figure before, that attitude.

"Parson Kennedy, look at this carefully." The speaker drew out a full sheet of paper, opened it and held it out for his inspection. The Parson strained his eyes, his eyes protruding.

"You remember that, then?" asked the boyish one.

"Aye!" in a half-roar.

"Tell me the names of each of these men, and you shall go free. Refuse, and you shall be carried to Richmond, where they will hang you by the neck."

"Hanged by the neck?" Kennedy laughed—laughter that had the infection of a baited tiger snarling at its iron. "Yes, I know you, you little viper! Carry me away and hang me, but never a word will you get out of me. That's that. You'll suffer, wonder always who the man was. I know. But think you to dig it out of my lips?"

A face appeared at the side window and vanished hastily.

"I will say this much, Jeanne Beaufort—ah, you start! I regret that I did not shoot you out of hand when I had the opportunity."

Jeanne returned the paper to her pocket. She turned toward the door, only to pause in alarm. She heard, a curse, some muffled blows—a body crashed against the rattling boards. A moment later a revolver cracked; two shots followed; then came a tramping of feet, and then silence. The door opened, and a man entered swiftly. He wore a handkerchief over the lower part of his face.

"Don't move," he warned Jeanne. He passed around her to the person. With one hand holding a steady weapon, he worked with the other at the confusion of knots.

"Don't let her get away. What a prize, what a prize!" cried Kennedy.

The revolver waved, Jeanne swept the candle from the table, overturned it and flew to the door morning, banging it after her.

"Armitage?" he yelled Kennedy.

"Quick! The others will be coming back."

They groped hurriedly for the door, stumbled out and ran toward the grove, throwing themselves down into the thicket.

"Do you know who that was?" whispered Kennedy.

"God knows I shall never cease to remember that night!"

"Puh!"

"She got away."

"You speak as if you were glad of it."

"I am."

"Mind you! That woman is Jeanne Beaufort; and you have let her go!"

"Jeanne Beaufort!"

"Aye! And through your mad little sentiments you have freed her!"

In the small hours of that morning, in a moon room, a man sat wearily at a table, his bare left arm stretched across it. At the other side was a tumbler. He was putting on the finishing touches of a circle with the Greek-like letters in the center.

Eggs are valuable in the prevention of rickets. They should be fed often to the growing child.

The farm population of the United States decreased 640,000 persons during 1926, the highest decrease in any year since 1920. Decreases occurred in every section of the country.

The acreage of forest land in the United States swept each year by fire is about twice the area annually cut over by logging operations. Foresters estimate that more timber has fallen before the flames than before the ax.

COOK EGGS BETTER

"How will you have your eggs?" or "How'd you fix 'em?" The Negro waiter in the small town hotel says 200 days in the year. Fried hard and well greased the eggs always come—why does he continue to ask?

Any way, any high toned hen would have the right to be indignant should she come stepping into our breakfast room and find her highly nutritious product (combining the vitamin, mineral, easily digested fat and muscle builders so as to make it just right for children, children and grown-ups) made unattractive and indigestible by cooking at a high temperature in clear fat.

Let's take a little more trouble and teach the family to fix eggs by making the egg more attractive. Eggs should always be cooked at a low temperature to insure tenderness and digestibility.

Poach Eggs in Milk

Slightly beat them and add to hot milk (1 cup to an egg), cooking slowly until thickened and then pour on well browned toast. Serve hot. Milk helps to give the egg a milder flavor and also adds to the food value.

Omelet

For each egg, use two tablespoons milk or water and one teaspoon butter. Separate the yolks from the whites. Beat the whites until they are stiff. Beat the yolks well, and add them to the liquid. Season the mixture with salt.

Fold the whites into the yolks carefully in order not to break the air bubbles. Pour the mixture into a frying pan in which a small amount of butter has become quite hot. Cook it on the stove or in the oven, without stirring it, until the egg is set. Fold one-half over the other, and turn the omelet out on a hot dish for serving.

This omelet may be varied. When the mixture is poured in the pan a sprinkle of grated cheese may be added. A few small pieces of a very thin sliced ham or bacon may be used. Before folding, a little jelly, jam or marmalade may be added. This sometimes helps the child to eat his egg.

All omelets must be served hot, must be light and fluffy. A very small amount of butter is allowed. The much would take away the lightness.

Baked Egg in Bacon

Grease saffron dish slightly. Place a piece of bacon around the side of each cup. Break an egg into each of these rings. Bake the eggs for about 15 minutes in a moderate oven, or until they are set. Bake an egg for each person to be served.

Eggs Baked in Tomato

Use 1 tablespoonful chopped green pepper, 1 small onion chopped, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 eggplants (medium), 1 teaspoonful salt, 1/2 teaspoonful blue pepper, 6 eggs, and 1/2 cup of cream.

Cook the onion and green pepper in the butter for five minutes, add the tomatoes, and cook slowly about fifteen minutes, pour into a shallow baking dish or glass platter and break the eggs carefully into the tomato. Sprinkle with the cream and bake in a moderate oven for about fifteen minutes until the eggs are firm. Serve in the dish in which they are baked.

ROLLINS TO BE THE FINEST SMALL CHRISTIAN COLLEGE IN UNITED STATES

It is the ambition of Hamilton Holt to make Rollins College the finest small Christian college in the United States, according to G. G. Ware, president of the First National Bank, who is head of the Rollins College Development Fund campaign organization in Leesburg. How Dr. Holt, who is president of Rollins College, hopes to accomplish this ambition was explained by Mr. Ware.

"Although Dr. Holt has demonstrated an unusual fitness for solving modern national and international problems," said Mr. Ware, "he is old fashioned in one of his pronounced beliefs. He believes that the professors of a college make that institution great."

"Dr. Holt knows from his own experience in his school and university days that a truly great teacher is rare indeed. He says that in all his school and college experience he remembers only three professors who impressed him. Dr. Holt does not remember and in fact anyone who has attended school, college or university, remembers very little of the subjects that were taught. One thing that is indelibly impressed upon the minds of young men and women of school age is the personality and the mobility of character of some outstanding teacher."

"It is the teacher of golden personality and of noble character that Dr. Holt is seeking in Rollins College. Because he knows that the school will never have to exceed 700 students, he also knows that Rollins will require but seventy-five professors. To fill these positions on the teaching staff of Rollins, Dr. Holt expects to obtain the kind of teachers that will be an inspiration to every student who comes under their influence."

"Already Dr. Holt is surrounding himself with professors who meet this requirement. When he sought the right man to become dean of Rollins College, he chose from several available men, Dr. George E. Carothers who was possessed of a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Columbia University, but who was selected because a majority of his former students, in response to an inquiry, wrote Dr. Holt that Prof. Carothers was 'the best teacher they ever had.'"

Dr. Holt has applied this test to each of the eleven new professors who have been called to Rollins College this year. In the case of every professor considered for a position on the Rollins faculty, twelve present or former students have been asked their opinions of the man's teaching ability. Unless at least sixteen of the twelve reply that the professor was the best they ever had, Dr. Holt does not consider him worthy of a place at Rollins.

"This test has established old line education by its unsuitability, but Dr. Holt insists that the best judge of teaching ability is the student who has seen taught. If he was seeking research experts or men to delve into the unknown to extend the borderland of knowledge, Dr. Holt says he would not utilize this original method. But he is seeking the professor who knows the most. Dr. Holt wants men of genuine teaching ability and of inspiring character."

The "personal" element in Dr. Holt's program for the future Rollins College is considered of utmost importance to the entire state of Florida. Mr. Ware said. By attracting to Rollins the best of teaching ability, Dr. Holt is expecting to pay larger salaries to professors. Dr. Holt is authority for this statement that "with the exception of ministers of the Gospel, teachers are more poorly paid than members of any profession." Dr. Holt expects Rollins to be the college that does not under-pay its professors.

To bring the professors of golden personality and real teaching ability to Florida and to erect the new buildings on the Rollins campus to house Florida's most unusual college, Dr. Holt is extending an opportunity to the people of the state to support the Rollins College Development Fund campaign. When Florida has shown an appreciation of Dr. Holt's dedication of the rest of his life to the task of making Rollins the finest small college in America, Dr. Holt will go into the north and bring to the state a sufficient endowment to carry on the Rollins program.

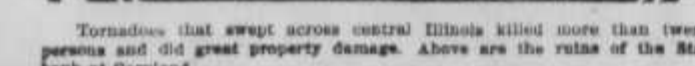

The new program of paving for St. Cloud started a few days ago, with the taking up of the brick on the north end of New York avenue, says the Tribune, of that city. These brick are being taken to Seventh and Eighth streets, where they will be re-laid from Indiana to Ohio streets, which means that within a few days St. Cloud will have paved streets on three sides of the city park, the Tribune adds. In a few days the dredge now at work in the city will be moved and will start on a fill on the Boulevard so that by another week there will be a lot of work going on again in the city in the way of municipal improvements.

The water taps have all been put in on New York avenue, and a few days will finish the Carolina avenue, which is yet to have the sanitary sewer connections made. When the work is completed St. Cloud will be one of the best paved towns in that part of the state.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

CHAMBER COMMERCE HAS LETTER FROM G. C. HUNTER

There was a good attendance at the Chamber of Commerce to enjoy the noon luncheon and business meeting Wednesday. President W. Landis presided and asked C. C. Pike to say grace. The following communication from G. C. Hunter, who is visiting in Gallien, Ohio, and is missed at the Chamber of Commerce meetings, was read:

"It may interest you and the chamber of commerce to know that up here people are mostly interested as to the present condition and in the real truths of matters affecting the state instead of the newspaper advice that the state is a ruin. I was hardly in the city until I had two invitations to deliver talks along this line, and I did speak to the Kiwanis here yesterday. Only one man present had ever been in the state, and I am positive that when I had finished they had a far different conception of Florida than ever before. It may be hard for people living in Florida to realize the general advertising the state has had. First, the only reports people in the north had was that everybody was getting rich in real estate, and then with that collapse it was only expected that the state would go to pieces, for the rise and fall of real estate was all and is all that the Northerner had been acquainted with, and never a word of the vast possibilities and present production lines in the state. I am looking for another address in a few days, and without doubt will have a number of such talks to give before I return."

Another communication was read from the National Organization of Spanish American War Veterans' Association, seeking a location for headquarters. They require 1,000 acres of land as a donation from the community in which they locate.

J. J. Johnston asked if any action on the proposed change in the fish law had been received. He said that he thought no one was in favor of a commercial fish law in Osceola county, and made a motion, which was carried, that the chamber of commerce go on record as favoring a wire being sent to Governor Martin asking him to veto the bill if it should reach him. Secretary Wheat said that it was his opinion that Representative C. Bruns had found that as a local bill it would not be possible to pass his proposed fish law, and that effort was being made to include it in the state bill by Royal, state game warden. A wire will be sent to him also.

R. L. Steen, who was one of the number who went to Orlando to inspect the paving that is being used, reported favorably. After a lengthy discussion of the paving, especially for Tenth street, it was decided that the best payment for the least money, one that will wear for at least the life of the road, should be used. Lenox Trickle said that the state of Illinois had gone to considerable expense in experiment on the best and most serviceable material for paving, and finally found that the permanent and enduring material is cement, and has adopted it for use in state highway building. It was announced that this matter would be taken up at a meeting of the city commissioners and Tenth street property owners tonight.

LETTER FROM L. B. BECKER

J. B. Becker and daughter, Mrs. George Earl, and granddaughter, Shirley, who left St. Cloud May 2 for Mason City, Minn., write that they arrived at their home on May 5. They made the trip by way of Lake City, Florida; Valdosta, Mecon, and Atlanta, Georgia; Chattanooga, and Cumberland Gap, Tenn.; Lexington and Louisville, Ky.; Vincennes, Indiana; Maudel, Decatur, Springfield and Mason City, Illinois.

The roads were good with the exception of a number of detours which were mostly good. The roughest roads were in Tennessee and southern Kentucky. In the entire trip of 1,487 miles they did not pass through any high water nor did they see any. This makes four different routes Mr. Becker has traveled, but he considers this the best one. He gives this information by request from the Tribune so that others who are contemplating homeward trips by auto can benefit from the road information.

DEMONSTRATION OF ELECTRIC WASHER

There will be another free demonstration of the New Easy Washer on Saturday, May 21st, from 10:00 to 12:00 a. m. and from 1:00 to 3:00 p. m. at the J. W. Pichens Grocery, corner Pennsylvania avenue and Eleventh street. The New Easy gains its swiftness by doing two things at once—washing and drying.

Eight large sheets, or the equal in other clothes, are dumped dried, ready for the line, while eight more sheets are being washed by the gentle vacuum cups.

VETERANS' ASSOCIATION

The Veterans Association meeting was held at the G. A. R. Hall Saturday afternoon, May 14, and was called to order by President A. W. Lathrop. After the singing of "America," followed with prayer led by Comrade N. W. Dauchamp, and the reading of the minutes, the Florida song was sung and the St. Cloud "yell" given.

A. R. McKay announced that Flag Day (June 14) would be observed by a parade and other festivities.

The program which follows was in charge of the secretary:

Music, piano and violin, by Comrade and Mrs. Raymond.

Reading, "The Old Man Who Lived In The Woods," by Mrs. Penn.

Reading, "A Love Story," Comrade Blackman.

Hon. W. J. Sears, our congressman, was introduced and gave a splendid address, telling of some of his work in Washington, D. C. He also spoke of the Miami disaster and the Malaria problem. The repeated hearty applause by the audience gave expression of appreciation of his presence and the many good things he said. Mr. Sears was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers and a small silk flag by the Veterans' Association.

Reading, "Your Flag and My Flag" by Mrs. E. Vreeland.

Comrade Reagan made a few remarks about the flag. The meeting closed with the flag salute and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." The social hour for the next meeting will be in charge of the W. C. T. U. ladies.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Bert Atchison, Pastor

There were 220 at the Sunday school last Sunday morning, notwithstanding the fact that so many have left for their northern homes. The Wisconsin Bible class, taught by the pastor, is still well attended. The class is now making a systematic study of the Book of Acts and will soon start with the epistle of the Romans in the same way. On Wednesday evenings the pastor is taking up the prophetic books of the Old Testament; the book for this week is the Prophecy of Amos. The church decided to hold its evening services at 7:30 p. m. instead of eight o'clock.

On Sunday evening, May 25th the Bureland service will be held in the Baptist church. As it is customary to make this a Union service, an invitation has been extended to all other pastors and their congregations to meet with us on that date. Mrs. M. Tucker-Potter will deliver the address of the evening. The pastor has been invited to deliver the Bureland address for the school at Bureland on the same evening, therefore will not be able to be present for the service here in the church. The Sunday school is planning for a picnic at Alligator lake for the second Tuesday in June. Remember the date.

RELIEF CORPS GIVES TO FLOOD SUFFERERS

L. L. Mitchell Relief No. 12 met in regular session with Mrs. Gertrude Baleson presiding. All officers were present except guard and assistant guard. The regular business was transacted. A donation of $10 was given to the Mississippi flood sufferers.

The Corps voted to put on "The Canadian" picture at Palm Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday evenings, May 25 and 26, for the benefit of the flood sufferers. This is a good clean picture representing life in Alberta, Canada, and what the farmers there have to contend with. Avail yourselves of the opportunity to see this picture.

EVANGELISTIC MEETING

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Ullman, evangelists, were present at the ten gospel meetings being conducted by E. L. Freerking, evangelist. Mrs. Ullman brought the message and sang several songs that were greatly appreciated. Mr. and Mrs. Ullman stepped in St. Cloud enroute to Ohio. The meetings being held at the big tent are increasing in interest and attendance.

Don't You Want to Help?

Here is a typical group of Mississippi flood victims—a family of white tenants—driven to the levee from the lowlands. They are awaiting the arrival of a Red Cross relief boat to take them to a camp on the highlands. The Red Cross is still asking for funds.
